

Dear Campers...

It seems like yesterday that we decided to open Eeshay for the summer of 2020. However, even with that exciting announcement and video, there were still so many unanswered questions. What would camp look like? What would it feel like? Would the campers stay healthy? Would the limitations and challenges of Corona make it such that we wouldn't be able to maximize our summer experience? And that last question was key. Because we don't view Eeshay as just a place to come and have fun.

Are the leagues awesome? Yes. Is Simon Sez hysterical and hard? You bet! Are the fries finally ready? Maybe. But what has always made Eeshay a unique place is that along with all the laughing and playing, we always felt that we were growing as Bnei Torah. Whether it was the way in which we dealt with a tough loss, the ability for us to shine with different talents outside of the classroom, or even just the idea of davening with kavana in between league games, these areas of growth have always been the hallmark of our camp.

And now that the first half has come to a close, it is incumbent upon us to express our extreme sense of gratitude and Hakaras Hatov to Hashem for guiding us and allowing us to be part of a half of a summer that was unique in many ways. But there was one thing which was not unique at all. And that is that each and everyone of us can proudly leave the banquet today feeling that in a way we got our life back. Our chiyus. Our ability to spend time with our friends, even with some of the restrictions, and most importantly the opportunity to once again realize how much each and everyone of us have to offer to both the klal and the yachid. So to those of us that are leaving for next half, we wish you a second half of the summer of continued growth within a safe and exciting setting. And to those fortunate enough to stick around... Buckle up. Cause you ain't seen nothing yet! (Eeshay Rush, Torture the counselor, Game Time Entertainment Pro day, Eeshay's Got Talent, Color War...)

Have a great shabbos,

The Kahnstitution

And that's a wrap! First half of Eshay has come to an end. After an obviously foreseen Clifton victory, camp resumed to its normal schedule. By normal I mean let's run all the campers into the ground until they collapse from exhaustion. And don't think the counselors get off easy. Sitting on a chair and spacing out during a league game takes effort! Besides, what's the point? Any call you make has the chance of being overturned by the man with the fox 40 whistle and the blue lanyard. There. I said it. Now I feel better. You're welcome fellow refs.

Then, out of nowhere, the rest of camp was so kind as to chip in to get the 6th grade their own tent. How cool is that?! Anyways, what a ride it's been. But there are several issues that have to be addressed. First off where is Moshe Muehlgay always driving off to? How much ice or Mountain Dew can one buy in one day? (Oh don't give me the whole "If not for Moshe Muehlgay and his sidekick Levi Adler, we would not be able to enjoy our day. They literally work their tail off {not literally. That would be gross} to make sure that we can have the time of our life. Blah Blah Blah. Spare me the mushy stuff. Even if it's true, I won't stand for it. My predecessor would lock me in a dungeon and take away my special powers if he heard me thanking people who work selflessly for others. So I won't. Whew!)

Second, who's taking over the Kahnstitution, cause it's not gonna be me. Last time I asked to be paid for this I was promptly blue checked by Rabbi Schonfeld. Apparently, he doesn't take my Declaration of Independence seriously as well. Oh, and I'll try to keep this to a basic reading level, apparently my advanced intellectual rhetoric in my previous article was understood by a gross total of 3 people. Back to Muehlgay though, is he trying to rack up fit-bit steps by just driving endlessly in the vast parking lot of Eshay? Does anyone see him come in or out? He seems to just spawn in right field in his car highly temped to rip some donuts in the pristine right field grass. Personally, I believe that Muehlgay and Heshie Katz are staging a coup to finally wrench control from the local tyrants. But what do I know? I'm just a local Baron. My powers have been severely stripped ever since I attempted to form a democracy. I'm currently headed to the gulag. But I hear I'm not alone. Ackerman (or his hair at least) may be headed there. Sperling (minus his chin) is in danger as well. Basically, anyone with 3 pint range that rivals you know who. Anyhoo, It's been quite a ride. Enjoy and stay safe everyone.
