

Dear Campers...

The Netziv at the end of Parshas Shlach writes a very important yesod. There are 613 mitzvos that Hashem commanded us. And the Torah tells us in Parshas V'eschanan that we are not allowed take away or add any mitzvah on our own. To do so would be an aveira. So in a way we are bound and limited.

However, within Taryag, writes the Netziv, each individual has to find the path of Avodas Hashem that suits him. There is no one glove fits all in yidishkeit (except for a hockey goalie). We are all unique. Some are more unique than others (Laffy Taffy jokes? Unicorns? Little baby sharks? Interesting sounds from your feet?...). But we should never be afraid to express our talents and individuality. In fact, its part of what makes Camp such an important part of the year. Because more so during the summer months, we can discover and cultivate talents and interests in things that we never knew existed before. For some it's art. For others it's chess. And for a whole bunch of us, it's learning how to slide under the tag at second base. But these are not just fun and games. Rabbi Yossi Elefant from the Mir in Yerushalayim once remarked that he remembers when he was a kid what happened the day after a tough color war loss. It made such an impression on him how his counselor, who was the Color War General, jumped out of bed to make sure to be on time for shachris. (We won't mention that his counselor was our very own Rabbi Kramer's father). It's moments of shteiging and growth that occur within the camp setting that show us all who we truly are. Have a great shabbos,

Rabbi Schonfeld

Dear Camp Eeshay. I hope you're having a great summer. I know I am. It is so very nice to see all of you in Camp once again. Except for [redacted]. He's still super annoying and nobody likes him. But who am I? Who is this anonymous author? This concealed character creating this column? This anonymous author? This reputable reclusive riter of record? This masked man making this mystery marticle? Actually, I'm not wearing a mask. Oh relax, you can't even see me; it's totally safe. But please don't breathe on my article. Or touch it. And most certainly don't get a paper cut. CAREFUL!!! Whew, that was close. And now to meat of the matter. I had not one but two, hilarious, sidesplitting articles that were deemed too inappropriate by R Schonfeld. He censors so much of my work, the Big Tech companies constantly seek his advice (that's why he's always on the phone), and he's the one the Navy SEALs hire to write their classified mission reports. (The real question is, if they're so secret, why are they all writing books, and everyone knows about all their heroic exploits and derring-dos? And does this mean that R schönfeld is really bad at his job? The real US secret commando unit is Delta Force. Oops, I blew it; that was fast.). If everyone could please nag him constantly to get him to uncensor those articles I'd really appreciate it. I don't care if he doesn't give in; I just want to annoy him. Sincerely, Kornvirus.

Kornvid-19?
 PS: What do you call a lightning fast attack of dairy products?
 Blintzkreig (I've been sitting on that joke for months, and I just wanted to get it off my chest).
 PPS: Some trivia: What is a Yectofantripuloniczanziptomiser, and what is it used for? Tell Rabbi Schonfeld your answer. First correct answer gets a small slush. You have to pay for it. Oh, stop whining. it's not about the destination; real growth is on the journey.
