

Dear Campers...

Wow! What an incredible start to the second half! Pictionary, ventriloquist, and of course, knockout. But it's not just the schedule and activities that make it incredible, it is the way by which you the Eeshay campers approach the games and the competition. Yes of course we are here to have a blast, and we do, but it's always with keeping our fellow campers in mind whether on our team or the other. And in truth, when we act like the beautiful Bnei Torah that we are, we end up having the most enjoyable time. When we represent the Torah properly and act with great consideration and kindness to others, that will cause others to love the way of the Torah. Looking forward to another incredible week ahead, just wait until you see what we have in store...

*Have a wonderful restful Shabbos
Rabbi Kramer*

THE GROMANCIPATION PROCLAMATION

WOW. Another week in the books. Summer's really flying. Plenty of time left though so no need to get all teary eyed. Unless your team needs a trade. Then cry away. In fact, maybe I'll take your best player off your team, you know, Zecher Lchurbon. All this power is so corrupting. Maybe I'll become a Rabbi to combat the overpowering urge to turn to the dark side and ruin leagues forever. Any-one have a white shirt? Although there's more requirements to becoming a Rabbi like we spoke about a couple weeks ago. I remember one- the, "no quitting leagues because you felt a little drizzle" one. What happened?? It didn't rain once this week. NO, I don't know why you were all soaked and the gym floor was a massive puddle, you tell me! Oh suuuuuuuure, raaaaiiiii. What even is that. It never rains in Eeshay! But lineup is fun. No, correction, lineup is NOT fun. Knockout is fun. "He can't shoot! He can't shoot!" I don't wanna hear it. You better believe I'll be doing pull ups after I bop your ball. Knockout is legendary. True story, somebody (I wish I remember who) once bopped a ball all the way to the baseball field. The funny part is that he actually lost the round. Goes to show you, just make your layup. But bopping is definitely more entertaining. Not as smart, but definitely more fun. Especially bopping Yoni, or Kramer because he's way too good, or Abramoff because, well, because. Or bopping me. That might be fun. Except y'all wouldn't know. "Too small" (insert hand motion here). I can't wait for the next "water is flying everywhere day" (it never rains in Eeshay), because we haven't even broken out the REAL "water is flying everywhere day" (it never rains in Eeshay) activity. Staff vs campers dodgeball. Now THAT is wild stuff. As well as whitewater rafting, and a whole lot more crazy intense league games. Get ready boys. Have an awesome Shabbos, Yosef
